The landscape is a very spiritual place. It contributes greatly towards my fascination with art and a compulsive desire to create my own pictorial reality of it. So to have a partner in life who shares the challenges of being an artist and is prepared to stand or sit alongside me, in remote and often uncomfortable parts of the world spilling paint whilst trying to interpret the terrain in front of them, makes it all the more special. Near and far is about two artists on a very parallel journey exploring the world both distant and close, staying curious and continuing to experiment.

* All works framed in Tasmanian Oak, except the series on page 12, which are available unframed.
